Meeting With Daniel
2011-11-30

Dear Dan,

It is difficult for me to describe the healing quality our first meeting at Dennys had for me, which occurred during my first tenure segment (second shift) at (G6).

Up till then a good number of the people I would meet for the first time would have at least one demon on board, or be under such influence of witchcraft that their first words would be designed to enslave the other. This has been referred to as the “dog eat dog” world, and it’s true. But I was aware of the spiritual dimension behind the words that came out of the mouths of the people.

Even the Prophet from Wasilla abused me verbally, and I was too weak to avoid it.

It went like this. He and I were having a meal at Dennys, I think for the second time. I was trying to describe to him the struggles I was having at (G6). While articulating my thoughts I came upon a despairing moment and said out loud while rubbing my brow with my eyes closed; “I don’t know, I don’t know”.

Essentially I was erasing my mental “chalk board” to start over verbalizing my thoughts. He heard what I said and jumped on my case right away, making the assumption of knowing what I was talking about.

“Yes, you do know” he said forcefully. “You do know” he said a second time with the same force. Then he manufactured an inferred sin, much the same way that Win Worley did, and indicated that I was guilty of that sin and needed to repent.

He said to me; “Say, “Lord”...” wanting me to repeat what he was about to say. I was still so weak (that is weak willed, which means that my spirit man was weak and had a difficult time making decisions, which was a direct result of resisting and wrestling with Satan at (G6)) that I just went along with what he was doing.

So I repeated the words that he said, that he put into my mouth, thereby, at least for a brief moment making me his slave (Nicolaitanism).

“Lord, forgive me for sinning...”

I don’t remember the rest of the detail other than that it was the sin of un-belief that he thought I was guilty of, and that he was attempting to “help” me to repent of, but doing so by usurping my own personal sovereignty, freedom and liberty.

It was not long after that event that you and I met for the first time at the same Dennys.

I continue to be so grateful that I could just be “me” around you and not be made a slave of by another Christian, and that your words were true and did not have a satanic agenda attached to them.

(CB11) and I met a few more times but I could tell that there was still some error in his way. He is the Lord's man and I refer him to his Master.

So Dan, even the memory of our first meeting is a healing thought to me. Thank you.

Blessings...

Romanus Theophilus
