The Accusations of Satan -Part I
"It Sends The Wrong Message"
2012-01-03

Dear Dan,

Toward the end of 2010 I completed my collection of MP3 Audio Bible Studies by Chuck Missler. The last two studies I needed were 1st and 2nd Kings, and 1st and 2nd Chronicles. When I obtained these two studies and completed the collection, even before I listened to them, I knew that I reached a spiritual milestone. It was the Lord saying that the acquisition of His Word was now complete in my life. All that was needed now was to make application of His Word, the Whole council of God, in every day life.

At about the same time I had been thinking that I might start listening to some audio books that I put off in deference to listening to Bible studies. It seemed the right time now, for I had all the Word in my possession, and I could take a break for a time and listen to some other literary interests I had such as classical written works from antiquity to the present.

But there were two recent audio books that I became aware of that really got my attention. One was called "Hope Unseen", the story about the first U.S. Army Officer, Scott Smiley, to remain in commission and on active service even after becoming totally blinded while on duty in Afghanistan. The second book was about a four year old boy, Colton Burpo, who died briefly and went to Heaven and saw and talked with Jesus. The title is "Heaven Is For Real", written and read by his father, Todd Burpo. I really recommend these two books to anyone.

I listened to these two books in late February and into March of 2011. After that I decided to listen to books written by Frank Peretti, a Christian author that had written a series of supernatural suspense novels. It made sense since he included a lot of "fictitious" events about angels, and since I was having real life experiences in that subject, I wanted to compare what he had written with what I knew.

Many years earlier I had read both This Present Darkness and Piercing The Darkness, but now that I had all night at work to enjoy audio books, I purchased the audio versions and started to listen.

Coincidentally, at the same time that I began to listen to the Peretti books, the Satanic oppression at work increased as well, and was focused in (G6d). Also, at this time my physical pain begin to increase to a point of becoming debilitating. Angel Gabe remarked that this was due in part to my spirit man being beat up and that the spiritual distress was referring into my physical body.

I remember several nights in particular, and only in (G6d), the spiritual stress was so pronounced it was all I could do to focus on the audio so I would not start to recede into the mental illness that the demons were promoting. It was the same demonic mental illness that I had experienced at Harborview. It was really bad, but I was able to overcome by focusing on what I was listening to on my iPod.

For some strange reason, one of my responses to that time of stress was to take the following position before the Lord. I cried out to Heaven;

"I NEED AN ATTORNEY!"

About a week after this oppression started, on a certain morning while I was working per schedule in (G6d), the Manager of the Environmental Services Department I work in, came walking through and noticed I was using a mop and bucket. He then mentioned to me that “we” were not supposed to use mops and buckets in favor of using something like a “swiffer”. After making this observation and declaration, he quickly left.

I did not have time to think at the moment, but acknowledged what he said with something like “OK”. Minutes after he left I sent him an email detailing that I was a disabled worker (something he already knew) and that I used a mop and bucket because it was less painful for me to work with.

A few days later the Manager came walking through (G6d) again and noticed that I was wearing scrubs instead of the department issued uniform. He questioned me about this and would not listen to what I was saying; about how I sweat a great deal when I work, and that the fabric of the issued uniforms irritated my skin. He demanded that I wear the uniforms anyway.

A few days after that the Manager came through (G6d) again and took me aside into an empty patient room.

“While it is not technically forbidden by the “No Cell Phone Policy”” he started, “I have noticed you using headphones while you are working”. Then he questioned me as to what I listened to and why. I told him that I used the audio to distract me from chronic pain that was part of my disability.

“It helps me stay focused and do a good job”, I said.

“I have no record of your being disabled” he replied, which was not true as I had sent both him and the Department Supervisor an email at the end of 2009, before the beginning of the new shakeup, stating that I was a disabled worker, and that I needed to use certain tools to help me do my job. Further, I had also told the preceding Manager at my first job interview to be initially hired that I was a Disabled Worker, and it was further documented by my having to get a company issued parking permit for disabled workers.

But the Manager would not listen, or could not hear, or both.

“I don’t want you to use headphones any more”, demanded the Manager. Then he said;

“IT SENDS THE WRONG MESSAGE”

While this exchange was going on, I could feel the room we were in fill with evil spirits. Even evil spirits which had assaulted me in my youth were in the room, promoting his position and preventing him from hearing the Truth about what I was saying.

Then with all the strength I could find I said to him as he walked out of the room;

“(P7), YOU’RE WRONG ON ALL COUNTS”.

It was then that I became sure I needed an attorney. I also said to the Manager as he left that I would be getting a Doctor's note documenting my disability and what I needed that could be considered "reasonable accommodations" under the Americans With Disabilities Act.

Even under all that stress, the Lord gave me the knowledge that I would get everything that I asked for from both my Attorney, and my Doctor.

Blessings...
