

Letter 75
The Direction Of The Lord
2012-02-28

Dear Dan,

Lately I have been wondering if you have asked yourself and/or the Lord;

“Just How Many Letters Is That Guy Gonna Write Anyway?”

Well, recently I have been wondering the same thing before the Lord and here is the direction He has given.

As we both now see, the first block of letters, which I have called Volume One, is a chronology of the Lord’s work as I have observed it. Now, with Volume Two, I am writing mainly things that I think about along with new immediate messages from the Lord, currently in the form of dreams. I think I have a few more items for Volume 2. But here is the interesting thing.

As of “write” now, there will be two more volumes. As soon as we finish Volume Two, we will turn around and go back the way we came. Volume Three will be a series of commentaries on each of the letters in Volume Two, and Volume Four will be the same for Volume One. Pretty creative, huh? I thought so too. Efficient too, for by doing so we will be able to catch mistakes along the way and take care of any editorial changes if needed. Jesus is most efficient. That’s why His yoke is EASY and His burden LIGHT.

So there you have it. The Light at the end of the Volumes!

I will try to take another break before “making the turn”. In the meantime we have been brainstorming on how to produce the audio versions of these letters.

(REDACTED)

I hope you and your house are well.

Blessings... In Jesus Name...

Romanus Theophilus