Islam At (G6)
and
Other Signs
2012-09-16

Dear Dan,

Date: 16 September 2012, 3:30AM.

By now I'm sure you have seen all the news on TV about Muslims rising up against US embassies around the world. What I had written on the 11th (see below) is something I had not seen before at (G6).

In the meanwhile, days after I had written the account with the intention of sending it to you immediately, the Lord led to me to www.debka.com. I found an interesting article concerning a position taken by the Obama administration toward Israel. A quote from the article is attached.

But before all that, I had purchased two audio books from Audible.com, "No Easy Day" and "Let's Roll". "No Easy Day" had been publicized a lot on TV lately and is about Seal Team 6 and the final day of Usama Bin Laden. "Let's Roll" is written by Lisa Beamer, widow of Todd Beamer, who helped defeat the terrorists on board United Airlines Flight 93 in their attempt to destroy part of America.

I had started listening to No Easy Day a few days before the 11th and finished a few days after. As I write this I am in the middle of Let's Roll.

11 September 2012, 9:30PM (real time data).

I had arrived to work early as I routinely do and was planning on going into a small conference room to set up my MacBook to do some more writing. This conference room has become a place of refuge for me as it is unused at night. I have typed many of the Letters To Daniel in this room, including this one right now, as I am writing about this event just minutes after its occurrence.

The janitor closet where I keep all my working carts and tools and stow my backpack while I work at night is right next door to the conference room, making it very convenient for me to get things set up for the night and then spend some quality time before the Lord on the MacBook.

There is a re-light glass in the door to the conference room so one can see if any lights are on. I had just changed into scrubs, stored my gear and gotten the MacBook from my locker, then proceeded into the conference room when I saw through the glass the light was already on, so I expected to possibly see someone else in there. While that could be expected, in this case it is somewhat unusual, in that in the two years that I have been routinely using the conference room, only in rare occasions have I seen another person when I walk in.

Entering the room I saw to my right one of my fellow employees who works in the same department as me. He was standing over a hospital towel that was laid out straight in front of him, with his eyes closed and arms hanging low and crossed in front of him.

I knew two things at once:

1. I knew he was a Muslim praying to Allah (on 9/11)
2. I knew to go ahead with my usual routine, taking no further notice of him.

What is really telling is that for the minute I was in the janitor closet right next door to the conference room where he was praying, I begin to come under assault from Satan, which happens routinely anyway at (G6), and was already occurring this night as I was entering the main building (to which I had already said:

“FIRE UP THE GRILL”.

“FIRING”,

is what I heard in reply, which is Gabe’s typical response these days).

Before I could inquire of the Lord further He already started to explain for me not to worry about anything, such as whether the other worker might complain about me disturbing his prayer, etc.

After all, He is the One Who said years earlier in the Hospital:

“I AM IN CONTROL”

16 September 2012, 3:30AM.

P. S. The Lord just gave me another sign. Wednesday night at work I had occasion to video record a party with my iPhone. While recording a fellow female employee came up to me and asked if I was “recording this”, to which I nodded my head in the affirmative.

A few days later as I watched the 10 minute video, there was no record of that happening. I go, “what?!” to myself and begin to analyze. Today, I showed the video to (M), and we watched it together. Still there was no record of the co-worker coming right up to almost my face and asking me that question. And I know I didn’t stop the recording, because if I did there would be two video clips.

So as usual, when something unusual happens, I turn to angel Gabe and ask what it was all about. This time angel Gabriella said it was her taking the form of the female worker and then said to me that “you need help”. I guess I’ll find out later what she’s talking about.

Then Gabe and Gabriella confirmed what I had been thinking, that “they”, (angels) can “materialize” in a “bandwidth” that only their intended “audience” can see and hear, and since everyone else was busy partying with one another while I was standing to one side with my iPhone shooting video, they would not have noticed my subtle head shake in response to some one only I could see at the time.

By refusing to see Netanyahu, Obama sharpens his Iran dilemma

DEBKAFile Special Report September 11, 2012, 11:32 PM (GMT+02:00)

At odds - and no longer talking

President Barack Obama’s refusal Tuesday Sept. 11 to see Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu because “the president’s schedule will not permit that,” left Jerusalem thunderstruck – and Washington too.

At one stroke, round after round of delicate negotiations on Iran between the White House, Prime Minister’s Office in Jerusalem, the US National Security Council, Defense Minister Ehud Barak and Defense Secretary Leon Panetta collapsed. They had aimed at an agreement on a starting point for the meeting that had been fixed between the two leaders for Sept. 28 in New York to bridge their differences over an attack on Iran’s nuclear program. By calling off the meeting, the US president has put paid to those hopes and publicly humiliated the Israel prime minister, turning the clock back to the nadir of their relations brought about by the comment by Gen. Martin Dempsey, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on Aug. 30: “I don’t want to be complicit if they [Israel] choose to do it” – meaning attack Iran. By rebuffing Netanyahu, the president demonstrated that the top US soldier was not just talking off the cuff but representing the president’s final position on a possible Israel strike to preempt Iran’s nuclear program.

Blessings...
