

Letter 137b
DREAM
Fraudulent Merchandise
2012-08-23

Dear Dan,

The other day I had a dream.

I DREAMED THAT:

I had arrived in Seattle to conduct some business. I wanted to purchase a DVD of a certain movie or video. I was directed to a certain merchant who sold me what I wanted, but I discerned that it was defective. I approached the merchant for a refund, but he referred me to another merchant. The second merchant exchanged the DVD for a new one, but it was more defective than the first. I asked for a refund but the second merchant sent me to a third, who likewise gave me a third DVD that was even more defective than this first two.

At this point I became exceedingly angry and said three times:

“CURSED BE SEATTLE”

in an angry and forceful tone.

After that I left for home, and upon my arrival I found that my wife had contacted our local Cable Company to have a new DVR installed. She knew I was angry and also knew that the new DVR would calm me down, since it would allow me to record the Seahawks football games. The Cable Technicians were just finishing up when I walked in the door.

END OF DREAM.

After waking up I begin to inquire of the Lord about this dream. He informed me that there are temptations in Seattle that would entice the Prophetic mantle of the Church to utter curses against the City, in opposition to Jesus’ instruction where he taught His disciples to “bless, and curse not...”, and “bless those that curse you, do good to those that despitefully use you...”. See also Revelation 2:14.

Blessings...
