The Word Against "Mr Hankey"
2013-05-15

Dear Dan,

Quite a few years ago I was watching TV and stopped briefly on a channel that had an interview going on. The guy being interviewed was one of the creators of the animated TV show "South Park".

Now, I have never watched South Park, but I had heard enough to know that it was something that I would not like very much.

I saw enough of the interview before moving to another channel to hear something that got my attention. The man being interviewed spoke about a character called "Mr. Hankey", and that he got the idea from his dad who used to tell him that "Mr. Hankey" would jump out of the toilet and bite him or something like that when he would use the bathroom.

I would have brushed this off as just real stupid, except for something that occurred at the (G2) elementary school I was working at during the Day of 7.

One day while I was cleaning a restroom I came across a toilet that had not been flushed, and had residue from previous efforts at waste elimination. When I bent over to clear out and flush the toilet, I felt a pressure against my face, coming right from the bowl. This was not an odor, and I have been a janitor way too long to be effected by odors anyway. This was something I had never before encountered. I asked angel Gabe this was. He began to explain to me that sometimes Satan assigns demons to attach themselves to human excrement, in order to induce an unclean spirit in the human from which it comes.

I thought two things then. This was weird, and then I remembered some Scriptures. While thinking this, I asked Gabe how to deal with the spiritual mess. I remember that he wanted me to just go ahead and clean the toilet per normal, and that the demon would be cast into the sewer along with the human feces. And, I remember that is exactly what happened.

The Scripture I remembered is found in 1st Samuel chapters 5-7 and speaks of tumors, actually hemorrhoids ("emerods" in the King James english). Since you have read these letters this far, and have already purchased for yourself a New King James Bible (or have a reasonable equivalent), take time now to read 1st Samuel chapters 5-7.

This is the Word against "Mr. Hankey".

Blessings...

R. C. Theophilus
