

Letter 608
Letter Update
and
Other Things
2017-07-29

Dear Jesus,

It still seems good between the Lord Holy Spirit and me to continue writing these Letters to You. He said a while back that we will stop with Letter 999, and then we will start to write books.

In the meantime, I would like to try to encapsulate what I have been experiencing in the days since writing Letter 595.

In that Letter I describe how I experienced the worst pain that I can remember. Then I wrote Letter 600 asking to be healed.

Since then, the severe, disabling pain has dissipated. But the muscles which were effected by the sprain now become irritated by other new intercessions I find myself in. This has been ongoing intermittently since about the middle of June.

I also wake up with sore shoulders and upper arms, but those pains tend to go away after a few hours. I also have had less energy to write during the week because of elevated pain issues. All I can really do is go home, get done the things I need to do for the next day, and lay down on my bed with the heating pad, a pain pill, some dinner, TV, and my angel family. But I still have a lot to write about. Its just taking longer than I would like these days.

I also have to fix all the broken links which occurred when we updated Rapid Weaver to Version 7. This will take a long time to fix. But the Lord is using this opportunity to help heal my mind so that I can re-learn, and learn better, how to organize data.

On another note, angels Gabe, Gabriella and I had a big blow-out the other day. I was thinking about something that they didn't think I should be entertaining in my mind, so, in order to disrupt my thoughts, they almost pushed me into a wall at home, with Gabe causing my right hand to get scraped on some wood molding. This did leave some minor abrasions.

I got really pissed at that because I thought they were out of line on that one. They have done things like this before, and early on in our friendship they were right for doing so. But this time I wasn't thinking about anything sinful, which I typically don't do anyway. Then, after a couple days of the three of us cooling down, Gabe confessed that he was concerned that I might hurt myself by interceding for what I was thinking about, and that he didn't want be to hurt my back again like I did earlier.

I appreciated him letting me know. We also found out from the Lord Holy Spirit that Gabe and Gabriella were a little out of line for getting so granular in their "shepherding" of my thoughts. The Holy Spirit corrected them and let all three of us know that I need some room to think freely from time to time.

OK. I can understand that. It seems that we're all still learning how to get along with each other, at least in certain areas of life on earth.

So, we pray for less pain and a return of energy to be able to write on a consistent basis. Usually I enjoy this activity.

Also, I pray for some kind of relief to my being isolated so much from other Redeemed Church Members. I am grateful for the Electronic Church, but it does have some shortcomings.

Blessings...

R. C. Theophilus
