That's One Hot Wicked Witch-General
2019-01-21

Dear Jesus,

About a week or so ago I purchased a food product which was designed to induce more sales through increased consumption. Please allow me to explain.

A short while before this (M) had requested some Chow Mien. So, I went on a search to fulfill her request. We both knew that one of the local grocery store chains sells Chow Mien fresh from their in-store Deli stand. Then at the end of each service day, the leftovers are packaged for sale at a discount in a self-service cooler.

I had been looking off and on for several days in the self-service coolers for some leftovers, but to no avail. So one day I went to the in-store Deli when it was open, and purchased some fresh Chow Mien for (M), which she really liked.

A few days later I was in a different store of the same Grocery Chain, and upon looking in the self-service cooler, I saw a container that had Chow Mien in it.

But this was a 2 compartment container, with the second compartment holding a side-serving of General Tsao's chicken. For those who don't know, General Tsao's chicken is a spicy hot chicken dish, which usually has whole, red cayenne peppers in it, along with a sweet & sour sauce.

Now, (M) doesn't like hot spicy food, but I do, so I brought the package home and announced that she could have the Chow Mien, and that I would eat the General Tsao's chicken.

This was agreeable, and I served up the Chow Mien to (M), saving the chicken for my own later consumption.

When the time came for me to eat the chicken side-dish, I discovered something which I had known before, but not really comprehended, until now. As I ate, I wanted to eat more, even after I got full.

One of the reasons my comprehension had become so pronounced is because after I left my job at (G6), I had more time to prepare and cook fresh food at home. As soon as I started to do more of my own cooking, and after about a whole month of doing so, I was able to re-acquire some culinary control in what I was putting into my mouth. And I was then able to start to distinguish the differences various foods have on my palate. I also was really enjoying eating more fresh vegetables and fruit.

So, when this strange effect began to occur as I was eating the Cursed Chicken Recipe, it was like I was a banker being presented with counterfeit currency. I could immediately sense a difference in how I was being effected by the Corporately Cooked Food from the Grocery Store Deli Counter, as opposed to how I felt after eating my own, fresh cooked food.

While I was analyzing this phenomena, angel Gabe started to explain what it was I was experiencing.

He began to describe how, generally speaking, certain food manufacturers have refined their understanding of food chemistry to the point that they are able to isolate those naturally occurring chemicals created by God in food products which stimulate the palate, from the other created chemicals which signal satisfaction.

He then said that the misuse of these naturally occurring chemicals was a type of witchcraft, in that the abuse of these food chemicals (or drugs) is used for the purpose of manipulating some people to do the will of other people. In this case, the “some people” are those who eat the General Tsao’s Chicken, and the “other people” are those who control the Grocery Store Chain.

In this case, a chemical, previously isolated from other foods, is added to the General Tsao’s chicken to do exactly what I experienced. Keep eating even after I am full, and continuing to desire even more.

Foods which Creator God made for human consumption are desirable, tasteful, and satisfying, so that when one is full, one does not desire any more, at least for a while. Removing that chemical component which produces the feeling of satisfaction, and increasing the chemical that stimulates the palate, is what brings forth overeating and gluttony.

This form of drug abuse by certain Food Manufactures produces a product that could be likened to water that doesn’t quench one’s thirst. You could drink up a river, and still be thirsty.

When demonic spirits are added to this “recipe of destruction witches brew”, then all manner of diseases occur, starting with gluttony, and then obesity, and other health related maladies.

Not all food manufacturers participate in this type of witchcraft, and there are some foods created by God that do increase the sensitivity of the palate, such as salt and spices, which help to bring life to otherwise bland and dull foods.

Foods created by Yahweh, which are specified in Scripture, come from Original Creation of the Earth, and those Food Manufacturers which participate in the Unique Sin of Food Witchcraft Chemistry, which destroys the earth by reverse engineering that which God created, will have their share in judgment from Scripture, which says that:

“... You ... should destroy those who destroy the earth.”

Revelation 11:18

It is important to note that not every human palate responds the same to food chemistry. Not all palates respond the same to foods and recipes, and some people are immune to the abuse of food chemicals.

P. S. I have observed that frequently during and after the times I wrestle in spirit-space directly with witchcraft in general, these same kinds of effects can be produced, and I often will want to over-consume both food and beverage. Angel Gabe says that this is caused by my close proximity to the Spirits of Witchcraft. Fortunately this effect is temporary, and wears off quickly.

Blessings...

R. C. Theophilus
