"Approved"

Dear Jesus,

Friday, 01 March 2019, 4PM.

A very remarkable thing happened...

On the first day of this year I applied for a Full Disability Rating with the Social Security Administration, seeking monthly payments from my own personal annuity funds which are held in trust by the United States Government.

I had earlier retired from the hospital (G6) in December of 2018. I would have applied with the SSA in the spring of last year, but I had already made too much money to even apply. However, I spent most of the spring and summer collecting all of my medical records which document my injuries and deteriorating conditions.

Some weeks ago I had called the case manager assigned to me, and was informed that she was waiting on some records. I offered her my acknowledgment and said I would wait to hear further from her office.

This morning I went early to my Doctor's office to pick up an Internal Revenue Service form which certified that I am a Disabled Person and unable to work in any employable capacity, according to IRS rules. The form required a doctor's signature.

My doctor has signed the document and left it for me at the receptionist's desk to pick up. I got there just after 7:00AM, and retrieved the completed form.

Later on, at home, I went online to check my bank accounts. After that, the thought occurred to me to check my online Social Security account, to see how my application for disability benefits was progressing.

After going through the multi-step log-in process, I saw an entry which got my attention.

I clicked on the link, and there before me was a statement, dated today, that my request for Social Security Disability Benefits had been

APPROVED!

At first I was stunned. When I first applied, I had been informed that the usual application time could take up to 6 months. And I had heard more than one story from others that usually an applicant for disability is denied on the first try, with the need to make an appeal.

But last year, even before I had started the application process, the Lord Holy Spirit assured me that I would be approved the first time, with no need for any appeal. This is exactly what has just happened.

What He didn't say is that it would be approved so speedily. This was a complete, and very welcome surprise, to both (M) and me.

A little later on, after I told (M) the good news, I sent an email out to as many family members and friends as seemed right, announcing this miracle.

The responses I received were accompanied with Mutual Gratitude to the Lord for bringing this about.

Blessings...
